Operibus becomes part of Progrits

The Nordic software group Progrits has acquired the Polish company Operibus, specialized in software solutions for public transport. With this acquisition, Progrits expands its international presence and further strengthens its offering within the business area Public Mobility.

Operibus was founded in 2015 and is headquartered in Wrocław, Poland. The company's flagship product, PublicTransport.online (KiedyPrzyjedzie.pl), is a platform that combines real-time passenger information with advanced fleet management functionality for transport operators. The service is used by public transport companies both to improve the passenger experience and to make operations more efficient.

For Progrits, the acquisition marks a clear reinforcement of its position in the Polish market. The group has been established locally for more than ten years through its subsidiary Infospread and its product zBiletem, building deep knowledge of both the market and the regulatory landscape. With Operibus joining the group, Progrits further accelerates its presence and solidifies its position as an international player in digital mobility solutions.

"We are very pleased to welcome Operibus, a well-run company with strong local roots and a prominent position in the digitalization of public transport. The acquisition strengthens our presence in a growing market where we already have significant experience and see strong potential ahead. Operibus' products are a great complement to our existing Public Mobility offering, and just as importantly, we are welcoming a driven team that will naturally fit into Progrits both professionally and culturally," says Björn Ekström, CEO of Progrits.

Przemysław Sowa, CEO and co-founder of Operibus, comments:

"Over the years, we at Operibus have built the company step by step, in close collaboration with our customers. To take the next step forward, we are excited to join Progrits, where we will benefit from opportunities for collaboration, synergies, and structured support — enabling us to develop our solutions faster and reach more markets. This presents fantastic opportunities, both for our team and for our customers. We look forward to the exciting journey ahead, together with Progrits."
